

Compressing air is expensive. Air line leaks overwork the compressor, and inefficient air line driers leave moisture which can affect finished product quality (e.g. injection moulding applications) and cause tool corrosion.

Through our partners SCHMIDT® Technologies and VAISALA, Fluidic are pleased to offer a range of instruments designed to condition monitor the efficiency of your air lines, allowing preventative action to be considered.

Please contact either office for further information.

